[H2] How We Meet in Colorado

Online only. You meet by secure video or phone from somewhere private in Colorado, whether that is a home in Denver or a place hours past the nearest exit. All you need is a private spot and a steady connection.

[H2] How sessions work in Colorado

Session length	As long as the moment needs
Delivery	Online by secure video, statewide
Insurance	Private pay, plus select insurance through third-party platforms depending on your plan, with out-of-network documentation available
Response time	Typically within 24 hours, often the same day

We're a good fit if:

✓ You want unconventional, on-demand access

You value a practice designed to reach you in the moment, not one that books you weeks out.

✓ Distance or a mountain pass has kept you from care

The right therapist should not depend on where in Colorado you live. Online, the Western Slope and the Front Range get the same access.

✓ You want a results-oriented therapist

You are ready for a therapist who names patterns, asks hard questions, and helps you move on your timeline.

Online Therapy in Colorado FAQs

Are you licensed to see clients in Colorado?

Yes. I am licensed to provide counseling to clients physically located in Colorado, through the Colorado State Board of Licensed Professional Counselor Examiners, under DORA. CO #LIC.0017658

Is online therapy legal in Colorado?

Yes. The rule that matters is where you sit during a session, not where the therapist does. I hold a full Colorado license, so for anyone located in Colorado, secure video or phone sessions stand on solid ground.

Can you verify your Colorado license?

Yes. Colorado keeps a public license lookup through the Colorado LPC board (DORA), so you can confirm any counselor's standing at colorado.gov/dora before you book. CO #LIC.0017658

Do you have an office in Colorado?

No. I work online across Colorado by secure video, so you can meet from somewhere private. There is no waiting room and no commute.

Does insurance cover couples therapy in Colorado?

Often it does not. Couples work sits outside what many insurers reimburse. I take private pay across Colorado and provide out-of-network documentation you can submit toward possible reimbursement, along with select insurance through third-party platforms depending on your plan.
