Doug Lormand is a Licensed Professional Counselor and AASECT-certified sex therapist who sees Texas couples and individuals online, statewide. Twenty years in, he works the way a lot of people here want, direct and without a lot of pretense. No traffic on I-25, no snow-closed pass, no waiting room. You meet from somewhere private, wherever you are in the state.

We're a good fit if:

✓ You want unconventional, on-demand access

You value a practice designed to reach you in the moment, not one that books you weeks out.

✓ Distance or a mountain pass has kept you from care

The right therapist should not depend on where in Colorado you live. Online, the Western Slope and the Front Range get the same access.

✓ You want a results-oriented therapist

You are ready for a therapist who names patterns, asks hard questions, and helps you move on your timeline.

Online Therapy in Texas FAQs

Are you licensed to see clients in Texas?

Yes. I am licensed to provide counseling to clients physically located in Texas, through the Texas State Board of Examiners of Professional Counselors, under BHEC. Texas Lic #66009

Is online therapy legal in Texas?

Yes. Licensure follows the client's physical location, not the therapist's. Because I hold a full Texas license, sessions by secure video or phone are on firm footing for anyone located in Texas.

Can you verify your Texas license?

Yes. Texas keeps a public license lookup through the Texas LPC board (BHEC), so you can confirm any counselor's standing at bhec.texas.gov before you book. Texas Lic #66009

Do you have an office in Texas?

No. I work online across Texas by secure video, so you can meet from somewhere private. There is no waiting room and no commute.

Does insurance cover couples therapy in Texas?

Frequently not. Many carriers treat couples counseling as a service they will not cover. I work on private pay across Texas and hand you out-of-network documentation to submit for possible reimbursement, plus select insurance through third-party platforms depending on your plan.
